THIS MATTER comes before the Court on the Motion for Summary Judgment, docket no. 31, filed by Defendant Washington State Department of Labor and Industries (“DLI”). DLI has moved to strike the materials submitted by Plaintiff Joan Roberts (“Roberts”) in opposition to the motion for summary judgment. See Reply at 1-3, docket no. 44. Having reviewed the submissions of the parties, the Court enters the following Order.

01 I. Facts

02 Plaintiff was employed by the DLI as a Vocational Service Specialist for 03 approximately twenty-five years. O'Neill Decl., Ex. 1, (Roberts Dep.) at 17:2-17,
 04 docket no. 40. Part of plaintiff's job included assisting injured workers in their efforts
 05 to return to work under the State's Early Return to Work Program ("ERTW"). Paja
 06 Decl., ¶ 7, docket no. 39. Peggy Halstead supervised Roberts at DLI. Id., ¶ 11.

07 DLI terminated plaintiff's employment on December 17, 2008 for, among other 08 things, substandard performance in her handling of ERTW cases,¹ insubordination, and 09 her disrespectful attitude toward her supervisor. Id., Ex. B. Roberts filed the present
 10 lawsuit on January 29, 2010, alleging that DLI failed to promote her and terminated her 11 employment because she is an African-American. See Am. Compl., docket no. 6.

13 II. Discussion

14 A. DLI's Motion to Strike

15 DLI moves to strike the Motion for Relief² filed by Roberts under seal, docket
 16 nos. 41-42, for Roberts's failure to comply with local court rules regarding the sealing of 17
 18

19 ¹ Specifically, DLI expected employees to close 35% of ERTW cases within a specified period of time. Paja
 20 Decl., ¶ 8, docket no. 39. Plaintiff fell below DLI's standard. Id., ¶ 39.

21 ² The "motion for relief" consists of a short pleading with a prayer for relief, along with over 150 pages of 22 appended materials. See Mot., docket no. 41. The pages consist of the following: (1) EEOC filings;
 (2) Washington Employment Security Division filings related to Roberts's attempt to secure unemployment benefits after her termination; (3) certificates of service; (4) emails; (5) letters; and (6) DLI benefit claim files that Roberts worked on during her tenure with DLI. See docket no. 41. The Court construes plaintiff's "motion for relief" as her response to DLI's motion for summary judgment.

01 confidential documents. See Local Rule CR 5(g)(2).³ DLI also moves to strike
02 Roberts's declarations, filed in opposition to DLI's motion for summary judgment, see 03 docket no. 43, because the declarations are not sworn or made on personal knowledge.

04 The Court GRANTS in part and DENIES in part the Motion to Strike filed by
05 DLI, Reply, docket no. 44. The Court GRANTS in part DLI's motion and STRIKES
06 the declarations filed by plaintiff, docket no. 43, in opposition to summary judgment.
07 The captions of the declarations imply that they contain testimony from the same
08 witnesses who filed declarations in support of DLI's motion, but those witnesses did not 09 sign the declarations submitted by plaintiff. The declarations instead appear to be 10 plaintiff's declarations. In addition, the declarations are unsworn and they contain no 11 facts. Instead, they merely state, in a conclusory fashion, that the majority of the 12 material in each of DLI's respective declarations is false. The declarations are not 13 properly before the Court for consideration on summary judgment.
14

15 The Court DENIES in part DLI's motion to strike the response, docket nos.
16 41-42, filed by Roberts in opposition to summary judgment. Although plaintiff failed
17 to comply with local court rules regarding the sealing of confidential materials, plaintiff
18 filed a redacted version of her response that provided DLI with sufficient information to 19 prepare a reply. See docket no. 41.

³ DLI also moves to strike the materials as unauthenticated hearsay.

B. DLI's Motion for Summary Judgment

Summary judgment shall be granted if no genuine issue of material fact exists and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). The moving party bears the initial burden of demonstrating the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). When a properly supported motion for summary judgment has been presented, the adverse party “may not rest upon the mere allegations or denials” of its pleadings. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e). The non-moving party must set forth “specific facts” demonstrating the existence of a genuine issue for trial. Id.; Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 256 (1986).

The materials appended to plaintiff's response, see docket no. 41, consist entirely of unsworn, unauthenticated hearsay. See Fed. R. Evid. 801, 802, and 901. Accordingly, plaintiff has not met her burden of submitting admissible evidence and summary judgment is appropriate. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e)(3). Moreover, even if the Court disregarded the evidentiary deficiencies in plaintiff's submissions, plaintiff has not submitted materials that demonstrate that there is a genuine issue of material fact for trial on her claims for disparate treatment, retaliation and hostile work environment.⁴

⁴ In addition to these claims, plaintiff's amended complaint appears to allege a state common law claim for defamation. Am. Compl. at 3, docket no. 6. DLI argues that even if plaintiff is pursuing a claim for defamation, her claim is barred by her failure to comply with the statutory requirements for filing a tort claim against a state agency. See RCW 4.92.100-.110. The Court agrees. Accordingly, to the extent raised, plaintiff's common law defamation claim is DISMISSED without prejudice. See Levy v. State, 91 Wn. App. 934, 942, 957 P.2d 1272 (1998).

01 1. Roberts's Disparate Treatment Claim

02 Roberts's complaint alleges disparate treatment by her supervisor, Peggy
03 Halstead. To establish a prima facie claim for disparate treatment, Roberts must show
04 that (1) she belongs to a protected class; (2) she was performing her job in a satisfactory
05 manner; (3) she was subjected to an adverse employment action; and (4) she was treated
06 differently than a similarly situated, non-protected employee by her employer.
07 Cornwell v. Electra Cent. Credit Union, 439 F.3d 1018, 1028 (9th Cir. 2006).

08 Although Roberts's amended complaint alleges that DLI terminated her
09 employment because of her race, nothing in any of Roberts's submissions in opposition
10 to summary judgment shows that DLI treated her differently than a similarly situated,
11 non-protected employee. Conversely, the evidence submitted by DLI demonstrates 12 that the department did not treat Roberts differently. For example, contrary to the 13 allegations in Roberts's amended complaint, Halstead never assigned "bad" ERTW
14 cases to Roberts, or any other employee. Halstead Decl. ¶ 11, docket no. 34. Instead,
15 Halstead distributed the work evenly to the caseworkers in Roberts's unit. Id.; see also 16 Hallauer Decl. ¶ 14, docket no. 32. In her deposition, Roberts testified that she did not 17 know how Halstead distributed the work. O'Neill Decl., Ex. 1 (Roberts Dep.) at 18 98:9-14.⁵

19
20
21
22 ⁵ Roberts also submitted no evidence that supports her contention that she was not promoted to a managerial position because of her race.

01 Even if the Court liberally construes Roberts's submissions, the record contains 02 insufficient evidence to establish a prima facie case of employment discrimination
03 because Roberts submitted no evidence that suggests that her employer treated her
04 differently because of her race. DLI is entitled to summary judgment on Roberts's
05 disparate treatment claim.

06 2. Roberts's Retaliation Claim⁶

07 To establish a retaliation claim, a plaintiff must show that (1) she engaged in a
08 protected activity; (2) she suffered an adverse employment action; and (3) there is a
09 causal link between the protected activity and the employment decision. Raad v.
10 Fairbanks N. Star Borough Sch. Dist., 323 F.3d 1185 (9th Cir. 2003).
11

12 Here, Roberts alleges that Halstead retaliated against her after she complained to 13 Halstead's superiors. But the record contains no evidence of any causal link between 14 plaintiff's complaints about Halstead and her termination. To the contrary, it was Alan
15 Paja, not Roberts's supervisor Halstead, who decided to terminate plaintiff's
16 employment. Paja Decl., ¶ 26, docket no. 39. Paja made the decision to terminate
17 Roberts independently, without any input from Halstead, and after a lengthy 18 investigation that he detailed in a thoroughly prepared letter to Roberts. Id. at Ex. B.
19 Plaintiff also has not shown that she engaged in any of the type of protected activity that 20

21 ⁶ Roberts's own submissions indicate that her EEOC grievance only identified her termination as a basis for her 22 discrimination claim. See docket no. 41 at 5 (EEOC grievance form). It appears that Roberts did not exhaust her administrative remedies as to her (1) disparate treatment claim for non-promotion; (2) retaliation claim; and
(3) hostile work environment claim. See Leong v. Potter, 347 F.3d 1117, 1122 (9th Cir. 2003) ("The jurisdictional scope of the plaintiff's court action depends on the scope of the EEOC charge and investigation.").
Accordingly, plaintiff's failure to exhaust is an alternative ground supporting dismissal of these claims.

01 would give rise to a retaliation claim. See Learned v. City of Bellevue, 860 F.2d 928, 02 931 (9th Cir. 1988) (plaintiff engages in protected activity when she opposes what she 03 reasonably believes to be unlawful discrimination). Summary judgment on plaintiff's
04 retaliation claim is appropriate.

05 3. Roberts's Hostile Work Environment Claim

06 To establish a claim for hostile work environment, plaintiff must prove (1) that 07 she was subjected to verbal or physical conduct of a racial nature; (2) that the conduct 08 was unwelcome; and (3) that the conduct was sufficiently severe or pervasive to alter the 09 conditions of the plaintiff's employment and create an abusive work environment.

10 Vasquez v. County of Los Angeles, 349 F.3d 634, 642 (9th Cir. 2003).

11
12 Roberts submitted no evidence of racially inappropriate behavior by anyone at 13 DLI. Roberts merely speculates that her confrontations with Halstead were motivated
14 by Halstead's racial animus towards African-Americans. The record contains no
15 evidence of the type of severe and pervasive conduct that gives rise to a claim for hostile
16 work environment. Summary judgment is also granted on plaintiff's claim for hostile
17 work environment.

18 III. Conclusion

19 For the reasons set forth in this Order, the Court GRANTS in part and DENIES in 20 part DLI's motion to strike, Reply, docket no. 44. The Court STRIKES plaintiff's
21 declarations in opposition to summary judgment, docket no. 43.
22

01 The Court further GRANTS DLI's Motion for Summary Judgment, docket
02 no. 31, and DISMISSES plaintiff's claims with prejudice. The Court DENIES 03 plaintiff's motion for relief, docket no. 41, to the extent the motion contains a prayer for 04 relief. The Clerk is directed to enter final judgment dismissing the case with prejudice.
